Projects

Wireless Black Jack | Network Programming

October 2023 - December 2023

- Participated in a team project to develop a wireless Blackjack game, enabling server-to-client communication through advanced Python and socket programming techniques. This showcased our ability to implement real-time data transmission and networked application development.
- Demonstrated the completed project in a presentation that detailed our development process, including significant milestones, methodologies employed, and the project's outcomes, emphasizing the technical skills and tools utilized and the practical implications of our work

WSL Development Environment | Applications of AI

November 2024 - December 2024

- Developed a Python-based tool for advanced image manipulation using the PIL (Pillow) library for pixel-level modifications.
- Integrated OpenAI's GPT-4 API to dynamically generate Python code for custom image transformations based on user requests.
- Demonstrated expertise in combining artificial intelligence with image processing to deliver a dynamic and efficient solution.
